'Big League' Shop Plans To Be A Cut Above The Rest

by Dave Walters

After a career in law enforcement and home health care, Glen Scharfeld has made it to the 'Big Leagues'.

He will be opening the doors Friday to Big League Haircuts, a sports-themed barbershop in the Publix Plaza in Dade City.

This is a fun business venture for Scharfeld, but he isn't kidding when it comes to quality service.

"I don't cut hair and I don't know how to cut hair. I rely on professionals and they will provide the best to the customers," Scharfeld said. "I have some of the best girls cutting hair here."

The barbershop will feature televisions packed with sports while you get a haircut. Once your cut is finished a massage machine is available to take the edge off the rest of your day. Haircuts are $15 for an adult, $12 for a child.

"We're going to make people look good and feel good about themselves," Scharfeld said. "We want them to have a very positive experience."

To jumpstart Big League Haircuts, Scharfeld has a direct mail piece coming to local mailboxes that will grant the recipient one free haircut during the shop's first six weeks in business.

Greg Gude Retiring From Fire Service

County Battalion Chief's Career To End June 30

by Joe Potter

Things have changed a lot since he started his first shift as "a grunt firefighter" for Pasco County Fire Rescue on April 22, 1987.

When Battalion Chief Greg Gude retires June 30 he will have spent 30 years and nine days with PCFR, but he didn't realize until recently that his last work day would be on his 59th birthday.

"What a birthday present – retirement," he said with a chuckle.

There were approximately 120 employees in the county's fire department when he started in 1987 compared to the more than 500 employees who work there now.

"The equipment we use now is a lot different. The air packs firefighters use weigh half as much as they used to," he said.

Fire trucks are now replaced when they are 10 years old but when Gude started some of them trucks that were older and often surplus units from other departments.

When he started, firefighters had to refer to map books for directions back then and they now use electronic devices that have full-scale digital maps.

Every PCFR apparatus is now equipped with thermal imaging apparatus, Gude said, something that didn't exist 30 years ago. Also, improvements to fire hoses provide a higher volume of water than in the past, making them easier to handle, Gude said.

Communications are also handled much differently now. "We used to meet face to face. Now we do a lot of video conferencing," he said.

In 1975 there was a large blaze at a St. Joe business on Christmas Day and he and a lot of other people went to watch the fire department in action. Shortly afterward Gude had a conversation with the chief of San Antonio's Volunteer Fire Department.

"He invited me to come over and attend a meeting and become a firefighter," said Gude, a Hernando County native who grew up in St. Joseph. He became a volunteer firefighter during his senior year at Pasco High School in 1976. San Antonio's volunteer fire department was absorbed into the county's department in 1987 and Gude applied for a PCFR position because he couldn't serve as a volunteer for a regular fire department.

After being with the county department a few months he became a driver/engineer and was promoted to lieutenant a couple of years later. In 1997 he became one of Pasco County's four battalion chiefs.

Gude has been responsible for overseeing six fire stations and the six station captains report to him. He is responsible for seeing that 34 firefighters maintain their training standards and the six stations function as they should.

Gude also responds to all structure fires – either house fires or commercial building fires – in his district. He responds to automobile accidents, brush fires and other incidents in which multiple units are dispatched.

"It's a lot of responsibility," Gude said.

He has worked under four fire chiefs since he joined PCFR three decades ago.

Gude's maternal great-great-grandfather, Andrew Barthle, founded St. Joe, which is known as the Kumquat Capital of the World. Gude worked for the family's Kumquat Growers part-time for 28 years, either in the groves or in the packinghouse, while working for PCFR full time.

"I helped to promote the family business," he said. He could do this because of the schedule he had with the fire department.

He and his wife have four adult children, one of whom has been a firefighter with the county for six years.

Gude said he is looking forward to spending more time with his family after he retires. He added that he enjoys fishing, boating and hiking.

He hadn't thought about being a firefighter while he was growing up because his dream job was to fly military helicopters. However, because of a boating accident when he was a teenager he had to choose a different career path.

Looking back, Gude said he is happy with the choice he made.

"It's a great job. It was a good career decision for me."

other chains,” Scharfeld said. “This is going to be a community business. We have a few minutes with people and we want to be a positive part of their day.”

“The attitude here will always be positive.”

Scharfeld is reaching out to the sports community of east Pasco County asking coaches and athletic directors to bring local sports memorabilia for display in his shop.

“I am looking for jerseys, helmets and other stuff to display in my lobby,” Scharfeld said. “I want people to know that this is their barbershop. We want men and boys to feel comfortable when they come in for a haircut.”

The barbershop business is slightly removed from his law enforcement days. While he will enjoy the interaction with customers as he did while protecting the public, this should be a much safer venture.

Early in his law enforcement career, Scharfeld was roadside at a construction project, sitting in his cruiser with his lights on. But a bit later, a tractor-trailer plowed into his cruiser and the truck flipped over. Scharfeld rushed to the rescue the driver.

“It was pretty crazy,” Scharfeld said. “God saved me that day. After that, I

Cole B. Curtis

CURTIS, Cole B., 56, passed away peacefully on June 4, 2017, at Bayfront Health Dade City with family by his side. Hard working, dedicated, loving and stubborn as hell, Cole grew up in Athens, N.Y., where he made lifelong friends during his time at Cossackie-Athens Central High School. As a teen he was a talented athlete who excelled at baseball where he received Rookie of the Year in 1974. A skilled mechanic, Cole had a passion for fixing up and racing cars, earning him several trophies for his efforts. He joined the military in 1979 as an Aerospace Ground Equipment Technician before becoming a special agent 10 years later, working for the Office of Special Investigations. He worked around the world from Japan, to Germany and most of Europe, across Africa, and finally in Turkey before coming back to the states and making Florida his home. As an AFOSI detective his job included many highlights, not least of which was meeting former President, Bill Clinton. His fellow agents had many nicknames for him, including "Bones" because of his tall and skinny build. He became a mentor for many as they made their way up the ranks of the department. Although he earned several awards for his dedication and excellence in his work, his most prized possessions were the simple gifts given by his daughters and grandchildren. Cole retired from the Air Force in May of 2000 after 20 years of service. His patriotism and work ethic he learned while in the military remained a key part of his personality to the very end. He loved chocolate labs, golfing, scuba diving, baseball and football and was an expert marksman. He had an eye for landscaping with a serious green thumb and often had the best lawns and gardens in the neighborhood, even in the middle of the California desert. His two loving daughters, Nichole and Angela, survive along with two grandchildren, Dion and Aiden; his father, Warren Curtis; mother, Sharon; and two brothers, Scott and Ward Curtis. The family would like to express their sincere gratitude to the staff of Bayfront Health. Their dedication and effort to provide quality care and comfort in his last moments were a blessing. Cole received full military honors during a June 9 service held at Florida National Cemetery in Bushnell. In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made in his name to Hope for the Warriors and Fisher House Foundation. Hodges Family Funeral Home handled arrangements.

She was a very special mom and friend who will be dearly missed. Her daughters, Terry (Bob) Hurd, Mary Ann (Jay) Kominsky and Susan (James) Permane survive her. Her husband, John, and brothers, Don, Hubert and Tom Cable, preceded her in death. A service for Joan will be held on June 15 at 11 a.m. at Chapel Hill Gardens Cemetery in Dade City. Pets of the Week

EMMA

Emma is quite light on her feet despite her 7 years of age. She has been patiently waiting for 8 months to find her forever home. We recommend that she be an only fur-child. Please come out to Pasco County Animal Services to meet Emma.

KITTENS

Scarlett is a younger kitty that came to us injured. She is quite a fickle little girl and likes to grab quick bites to eat in between getting loved on by staff and volunteers. You can find Miss Scarlett at Pasco County Animal Services.
